THE FIGHTERS COMPARED.

Measurements of Corbett and Mitchell—Corbett's Points of Advantage.

There is a vast difference in the physique of Corbett and Mitchell—a difference which was readily appreciated by all who saw the men as they entered the ring this afternoon. Corbett is long, the sinewy, and magnificently developed with much the advantage of Mitchell in height and reach. He belongs to what is most aptly termed as the "tiger bound" type of fighter. Mitchell, on the contrary, is short, stockily built and admirably equipped with the muscles most congenital to the modern fighter.

The following is a comparative statement of the various measurements of the men taken a few days ago. They have changed but little, if any, since then.
